Design of Schedule for Grandmasters Presentations

We know that the main reason many of you are attending the Symposium is to take advantage of this exceptional opportunity to meet the lineage holders—the Grandmasters—of each of the five major family styles of traditional Tai Chi Chuan. With that in mind, we designed a schedule to feature all of them on a daily basis. All five Grandmasters are scheduled to make a presentation each day. Each morning, one Grandmaster gives a keynote address. In two concurrent morning active instructional workshops, two Grandmasters teach their Tai Chi Chuan form, and in the afternoon's two concurrent active instructional workshops, the other two Grandmasters teach theirs. And we arranged their workshop time so that you can rotate through all of the instructional units and all five styles.

Rotation of Instructional Workshops

Each Grandmaster teaches his 16-move routine (Part One and Part Two) twice during the five-day series. Your Group (Group A or B, in morning and afternoon sessions) is rotated so that you are scheduled to participate in both parts of each style during the five-day period.

In the spirit of "one family", the Grandmasters respectfully request that participants do not repeat any of their workshops, but instead take advantage of this unique schedule and sample all five family styles. We, too, request that participants plan to visit each Grandmaster and learn both Part One and Part Two of each family's 16-move form. We appreciate your honoring their request and adhering to your schedule.

	All participants, faculty, staff, guests, and friends are invited to the informal Friendship Party. Celebrating our week of meeting friends old and new, we've planned an All-American picnic and barbecue, plus an evening of FUN and relaxation. The theme is country music and old-time square dancing, contemporary line-dancing, and general boot-scootin'. A professional caller teaches us how to do the dances. The music sets your feet tapping, and the rest is just party and friends!
